Chairman of Lloyd's Visits Crawford & Company® World Headquarters

Lloyd's John Nelson Briefed by Crawford® President & CEO Jeffrey T. Bowman as part of U.S. Visit

ATLANTA (June 9, 2015) – Crawford & Company recently hosted John Nelson, Chairman of Lloyd's—the world's leading market for specialist insurance and reinsurance—at its Atlanta office. Nelson was in the city as part of his most recent visit to the United States. While at Crawford he received a detailed briefing on the Company's strategy and operations, met with the CEO and other senior executives and toured the Command Center, Crawford's centralized global data tracking and visualization system for claims management.

"We greatly appreciated the opportunity to show our operations and discuss Crawford's capabilities with John," said Jeffrey T. Bowman, Crawford president & CEO. "Lloyd's has been our trading partner for many years, and this visit provided the opportunity to showcase our world headquarters, share information and further strengthen ties with Lloyd's."

Crawford has a dedicated Lloyd's and London market team with an in-depth understanding of the market and first-hand experience of working within it. The team's primary role is to manage Crawford relationships with the market on a global basis.

Crawford provides loss adjusting and third party administration services to the Lloyd's market around the world, across multiple classes of business covering the simplest to the most complex claims. At any given time Crawford provides loss adjusting services worldwide for more than 80% of Lloyd's Syndicates and is currently providing desk-based volume claims handling services under Delegated Authority Agreements for Managing Agents in approximately a dozen countries in Europe and the Middle East.
