Contractor Connection, Network Members Give Back to Communities Nationwide during Crawford's Seventh Annual Global Day of Service

ATLANTA (Oct. 13, 2015) — Crawford Contractor Connection® employees and their families teamed up with network contractors across the U.S. on Saturday, Oct. 10, to give back to their communities during Crawford & Company®'s seventh annual Global Day of Service.

Nearly 170 of Contractor Connection®'s 4,800-plus North American contractor network member companies contributed to helping others in a variety of projects of their choosing. The range of efforts included participating in charity walks, helping with building and home upgrades, assisting homeless veterans, lending a hand with beautification projects for nonprofit organizations, and supporting fundraisers.

In Jacksonville, Fla., more than 80 Contractor Connection employees and family members worked to beautify the grounds of the Children's Home Society of Florida. This organization serves abused and neglected children through foster home placement, adoptions, family life education for at-risk families, and many other services. Volunteers performed exterior cleaning, maintenance and landscaping. Meanwhile, network contractors Belfor USA Group LLC, Flooring America and FRSTeam contributed to build air conditioner enclosures and a covered sandbox for children on campus.

Contractor Connection CEO Larry Thomas was thrilled by the number of contractors who participated in this national effort to help their local communities. He looks forward to even more companies joining the cause next year.
